

WHAT IS CLAIMED IS:

1. An interacting ordering method with a function of re-directing returning profits comprising the steps of:

5 registering to a shopping network association; wherein the registers includes users, i. e., buyers, and sellers; each of the users and buyers has a respective network station;

10 providing platforms, commodity resources and management databases to the registered users and sellers by the shopping network association so that the shopping network association provides the commodity messages of the sellers through the network station;

building a connection between the user and the shopping network association through a network browser;

clicking an icon on the frame representing a network of the seller registered to the shopping network association;

15 displaying a frame to the user; wherein the frame includes a menu for reading the data of all the commodities and the operation of the network station;

selecting desired commodities and paying fees by clicking related icons on the frame;

20 determine a return profit about the transaction and displayed the returning profit on the frame; and paying the returning profit directly to the virtual account of the user.

25 2. The interacting ordering method with a function of re-directing returning profits as claimed in claim 1, wherein the resource provided includes: an order management system, a client service system; an order database; a commodity ordering management system; a commodity selling management system, a commodity database; a commodity price and discount of the order identification; a group data management system, a virtual account management system, a network content management system, and an identified group database.

3. An interacting ordering method with a function of re-directing returning profits comprising the steps of:

5 registering to a shopping network association; wherein the registers includes users, i. e., buyers, and sellers; each of the users and buyers has a respective network station;

providing platforms, commodity resources and management databases to the registered users and sellers by the shopping network association so that the shopping network association provides the 10 commodity messages of the sellers through the network station;

building a connection between the user and the shopping network association through a network browser;

clicking an icon on the frame representing a network of the seller 15 registered to the shopping network association;

displaying a frame to the user; wherein the frame includes a menu for reading the data of all the commodities and the operation of the network station;

selecting commodities to be bought by the user and paying fees by 20 clicking related icons on the frame;

determine a return profit about the transaction and displayed the returning profit on the frame; and

paying the returning profit directly to a virtual account of another user by an allowance from the user buying the commodity.

25 4. The interacting ordering method with a function of re-directing returning profits as claimed in claim 3, wherein the resource provided includes: an order management system, a client service system; an order database; a commodity ordering management system; a commodity selling management system, a commodity database; a commodity price and discount of the order identification; a group data management system, a virtual account management system, a network content management system, and an identified group database.